

*Last Chance,
Kids!*

SEPTEMBER

As the Astros' season draws to a desultory close, there's little to attract fans to Minute Maid Park ("Now pitching — and getting his ass kicked — Matt Albers!!"). The end of the 2007 season does bring with it the end of Craig Biggio's career, an event the Astros will milk to the very last drop. Here's the schedule for the rest of the year:

vs. PIT 6:05 PM 16 Clubhouse Lawyer Day First 10,000 fans get a whisper campaign started against their boss	vs. MIL 7:05 PM 17 Scalp Day — First 10,000 fans get replica scalps of managers Art Howe, Terry Collins, Larry Dierker and Jimmy Williams	vs. MIL 7:05 PM 18 Phil Garner Memorial Plaque Day ("For those who nobly sacrificed their jobs by continually batting Bidge leadoff")	vs. MIL 7:05 PM 19 Elbow Armor Day Try for your own hit-by-pitch record! Elbow armor impervious to anything but a direct nuclear blast	20-29 Losing in St. Louis and Cincinnati	vs. ATL 7:05 PM 28 Chris Burke Crying Towel Day — First 10,000 fans can have their careers at second base blocked by a stubborn old man	vs. ATL 6:05 PM 1:05 PM 29/30 No Bidge to Kick Around Anymore. A two-day celebration!!
				vs. CHC 7:05 PM 13 Biggio Bobblehead Doll Day (Note: Doll bobbles grounders, not its head)	vs. PIT 7:05 PM 14 St. Craig Medallion Day (Patron saint of low on-base percentage)	vs. PIT 6:05 PM 15 Cliché Day (In honor of the 3,000th time Biggio has told a reporter he plays "one game at a time." Say a sports cliché and get a free small drink)