The Houston Chronicle has jumped into what the kids call “the World Wide Web” with a vengeance. Reporter blogs, reader blogs, allegedly hilarious videos about life in the Chron cubicles — really, it’s what the Internet was invented for. And now they’ve unleashed the really big gun: features reporter Kristin Finan. Finan’s specialty has been first-person stories about learning how to sky-dive or rock-climb (or, most improbably, how to impersonate a Katrina evacuee at a shelter). Now she’s helming “Kristin 2 Go,” a wacky, unconventional, out-of-control vlog (a “video blog,” get it?) detailing her daily trips around town. Be sure to check out the introductory rap episode, if you dare.

Loooooov your videos!! Thanx for the add!! Please don't pay attention to the people who commented on your blog about the rap video, saying things like "ouch" (posted by "John") or "please stop embarrassing the city of Houston" (posted by "Ethan") or "Are you kidding me? I don't think I've ever been so shocked & embarrassed for someone making a complete fool out of themselves" (by "Juliet"). At least ur getting hits!!
